

United Arts of Central Florida Workplace Giving Campaign

During the annual Campaign for the Arts, United Arts works with local cultural institutions to raise funds for the community of arts, sciences and history organizations. Committed corporations provide support through on-site workplace giving campaigns. During these campaigns, employees learn about United Arts and the organizations we fund. This past year, 36 corporations and their employees generously contributed more than $389,208. In addition, each of these campaigns had a positive impact on arts and culture and our Central Florida community by raising awareness and community participation.

- Most campaigns last for one week and they incorporate in-office activities, and employee incentives.
